KENYA FAMILY PLANNING & REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH DATA SHEET

2016

Data Show Unworn Progress in Demand for Contraception Satisfied.

Most women are using or intend to use a method of contraception, except women ages 40 to 49. Women ages 15 to 19 and 20 to 24 are mostly non-users of contraception, but nearly all non-users in these age groups intend to use contraception in the future.

The rates of contraception prevalence in Kirinyaga County, the highest in Kenya. By comparison, Marsabit and Mandera Counties have roughly 2% contraception prevalence.

The total fertility rate (TFR) refers to the average number of children a woman would have assuming that current age-specific fertility rates remain constant throughout her childbearing years (usually considered to be ages 15 to 49).

Government Institutions Are a Common Source of Contraception.

At least half of women in all age groups obtained the most recent form of contraception from a public institution, such as a government hospital, health center, or dispensary. The second most common source of contraception is mobile clinics. In the past year, 34% of all women obtained the most recent source of contraception from another private source such as shops, mobile clinics, or community-based health workers/health assistants. This was more than double the percentage of women in other age groups.

FAMILY PLANNING & REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH IN KENYA

81% 6% 70% 31% 14%

Most Women Are Using or Intend to Use Contraception.

The laws pregnancy rate in Kirinyaga County, the lowest in Kenya. By comparison, Narok County has a 45% teen pregnancy rate.

The share of non-users of family planning that report hearing family planning messages on the radio in the last five months.

The percent of women ages 15-49 who have experienced sexual violence.

The share of non-users of family planning that report hearing family planning messages on the radio in the last five months.

Sources

Most women use or intend to use a method of contraception, except women ages 40 to 49. Women ages 15 to 19 and 20 to 24 are mostly non-users of contraception, but nearly all non-users in these age groups intend to use contraception in the future.

Most Women Are Using or Intend to Use Contraception.

The rates of contraception prevalence in Kirinyaga County, the highest in Kenya. By comparison, Marsabit and Mandera Counties have roughly 2% contraception prevalence.

The total fertility rate (TFR) refers to the average number of children a woman would have assuming that current age-specific fertility rates remain constant throughout her childbearing years (usually considered to be ages 15 to 49).

Government Institutions Are a Common Source of Contraception.

At least half of women in all age groups obtained the most recent form of contraception from a public institution, such as a government hospital, health center, or dispensary. The second most common source of contraception is mobile clinics. In the past year, 34% of all women obtained the most recent source of contraception from another private source such as shops, mobile clinics, or community-based health workers/health assistants. This was more than double the percentage of women in other age groups.

FAMILY PLANNING & REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH IN KENYA

81% 6% 70% 31% 14%

Most Women Are Using or Intend to Use Contraception.

The laws pregnancy rate in Kirinyaga County, the lowest in Kenya. By comparison, Narok County has a 45% teen pregnancy rate.

The share of non-users of family planning that report hearing family planning messages on the radio in the last five months.

The percent of women ages 15-49 who have experienced sexual violence.

The share of non-users of family planning that report hearing family planning messages on the radio in the last five months.

Sources

Most women use or intend to use a method of contraception, except women ages 40 to 49. Women ages 15 to 19 and 20 to 24 are mostly non-users of contraception, but nearly all non-users in these age groups intend to use contraception in the future.

Most Women Are Using or Intend to Use Contraception.

The rates of contraception prevalence in Kirinyaga County, the highest in Kenya. By comparison, Marsabit and Mandera Counties have roughly 2% contraception prevalence.

The total fertility rate (TFR) refers to the average number of children a woman would have assuming that current age-specific fertility rates remain constant throughout her childbearing years (usually considered to be ages 15 to 49).

Government Institutions Are a Common Source of Contraception.

At least half of women in all age groups obtained the most recent form of contraception from a public institution, such as a government hospital, health center, or dispensary. The second most common source of contraception is mobile clinics. In the past year, 34% of all women obtained the most recent source of contraception from another private source such as shops, mobile clinics, or community-based health workers/health assistants. This was more than double the percentage of women in other age groups.

FAMILY PLANNING & REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH IN KENYA

81% 6% 70% 31% 14%

Most Women Are Using or Intend to Use Contraception.

The laws pregnancy rate in Kirinyaga County, the lowest in Kenya. By comparison, Narok County has a 45% teen pregnancy rate.

The share of non-users of family planning that report hearing family planning messages on the radio in the last five months.

The percent of women ages 15-49 who have experienced sexual violence.

The share of non-users of family planning that report hearing family planning messages on the radio in the last five months.

Sources

Most women use or intend to use a method of contraception, except women ages 40 to 49. Women ages 15 to 19 and 20 to 24 are mostly non-users of contraception, but nearly all non-users in these age groups intend to use contraception in the future.

Most Women Are Using or Intend to Use Contraception.

The rates of contraception prevalence in Kirinyaga County, the highest in Kenya. By comparison, Marsabit and Mandera Counties have roughly 2% contraception prevalence.

The total fertility rate (TFR) refers to the average number of children a woman would have assuming that current age-specific fertility rates remain constant throughout her childbearing years (usually considered to be ages 15 to 49).

Government Institutions Are a Common Source of Contraception.

At least half of women in all age groups obtained the most recent form of contraception from a public institution, such as a government hospital, health center, or dispensary. The second most common source of contraception is mobile clinics. In the past year, 34% of all women obtained the most recent source of contraception from another private source such as shops, mobile clinics, or community-based health workers/health assistants. This was more than double the percentage of women in other age groups.